

This Week at ASCARC

Volume 9, Issue 37

Friday, November 4, 2022

Early November News at ASCARC

- Judy from our Lenape group home in Stanhope loves to cook and bake, and here she is finding her pleasure preparing a yellow cake. Everyone is going to enjoy eating Judy's creations. Our staff at the home help Judy with her cooking interest, and support her goals to cook and bake. Also at Lenape, is Ed's interest in his garden out back of the home. He is enjoying harvesting his cherry tomatoes.

- Celia from our Eickmann Center (left) really loves creating artwork. Especially popular with her is traveling to the Painted Grape Art studios in Franklin to paint Halloween art and her Autumn pumpkin. What a very attractive painting for the season! Now Celia can hang her painting in her own bedroom at her home. Great work Celia!

- The manager of our Branchville group home Irene and her staff created a beautiful depiction of a theme of the Great British Baking Show as part of the annual Town of Branchville scarecrow contest. All the baked items in the display are pumpkins made to look like baked goods. Staff painted the face of the person in the display. Very creative indeed!

- Brad and Carol from our Beemerhill group home enjoyed a concert at the Newton Theater where the group "Let's Hang On" played songs by Frankie Valli and the Four Seasons. Both Brad and Carol cherish listening to oldies of past music history.

- The men from our Hampton group home (right) purchased pumpkins from Ideal Farms in Augusta. Their group home will be well decorated with new pumpkins for the season. Good choices men!

- Tina from our supervised apartments went to Café e Dolci in Franklin. The restaurant specializes in crepes and other dishes. Tina loves to cook, bake, and prepare meals. At the Café, Tina learned how to make crepes and watched the chef staff prepare meals. Tina would love to work in the food industry.